Letter from the Federal Capital

OLLY BUCKSHOT AGAIN!

[By Our Own Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, March 19, 1866.

Gentlemen: Among the letters recently

advised as being in the post-office of this city ## was one addressed to OLLY BUCKSHOT, Esq.

I called for the same, and found it dated and ## postmarked Columbia, Ky., on the 10th ult.

The writer, as he states in the letter, is personally

stranger to me; however, there is much in it that ## proves him to be a gentleman of taste and discernment.

The following extract will be a sufficient apology for my again

appearing in your columns. The speech of flattery

it contains is only another evidence of the weakness ## of the human faculty.

The writer of the letter, I thought you would be ## interested to know, is a man of no small ## contributions. The rough-and-ready manner in ## which the letter is written, and the fact that it is ## addressed to a man of no small contributions, and ## the fact that it is addressed to a man of no small
